

For face detection only, I was happy that I could detect a face with openframeworks. And I was trying to play piano sound as an example. I got face detection and piano sound. Now what I need to think about is between those process. I am imagining that right after face is detected, then the dots will remain or the dots will be created into new page or a layer so that those dots will drop down on a piano keyboard creating a music.